The debased taste thus forced upon them in their poverty has continued, but it is possible that returning prosperity may again cause them to revert to their former demand for pure Malwa opium. Mr. Scott is of opinion, however, that the ratio of increase in the use of Persian opinm for the last two years, will not be maintained; on the contrary, he believes that a decrease will take place. In fact, Mr. Scott attributes the consumption of Persian opium in his district entirely to its cheapness as compared with the Indian drug. The proportion of Persian opium to Malwa, when the two are used together,

, we are told, about one or one and-a-half parts five. In Kinking the well-to-do still smoke nothing but pure Malws, theother kinds of Indian opium being practically unknown in that market. From what Mr. Scott sayes we should think Persian opinm will soon find a formidable rival in the native manufactured drug. The former appears to possess no recommendation other than its cheapness; in strongth and flavour it is declared to be greatly inferior to the Indian drug, and it would seem that it owes its prominence in this market, as compared with native opium, to accident : for if it is true that Persian and native opium are, as is asserted, on a par asregards quality and flavour, the latter drug, being only 7-11ths of the price of the former, must, if they come into competition, have the advant-

The Sassoon firms say that chest for chest their dealings in Persian opium pay thom better than those in Indian opinm, the loss of interest on the capital invested in the latter being so heavy. With Persian opium, on the other hand, there is no risk; advances are remitted on its arrival at Hongkong, but account-sales are, of course, only rendered on the chests finding purchasers. This is doubtless a consideration that must tell in favour of Persian opium. But, notstanding that Malwa is thus somewhat heavily. handicapped, we have little fear that it will be able to hold its own against the Persian product, unless the latter is susceptible of very great improvement both in its growth and manufacture. while at the same time its comparatively low price is retained. - Friend of India.

> ------ OUVIELLES IN RANGOON.

It may not be generally known that there exist in Rangoon, among the Chinese population, those of whose silent working the outside world has no idea whatever, ulthough its effect on the Chinese themselves is observable in various ways connected with their social and political existence. As a race: the Chinese are very classish and of gregarious habits, living together and forming themselves into communities wherever they go, and among whatsoever people their lot is cast. with a view to mutual help and protection. In Burma, setting aside for the present their tribal distinctions and taking their nationality as a whole, the Chinese are divided into two great clusses, viz., the Hokiens or Chinchows and the Mauaes: the former, comprising the merchants, petty tradesmen and shopkeepers, beatmen and gardeners, belong, for the most part, to a society. called the Topekhong; and the latter, under which are ranged nearly all the artisan classes and handicraftsmen we have in Burma, such " as carpenters. blacksmiths, jewellers, shoemakers, and tailors, are almost to a man membors of the Ghee Hin Society. Rotween the Hokiens and the Magaes there exists a traditional batred, a deadly cumity, which has grown with their growth and become a sentiment in their breast: it is a sort of a warfare to the knife that they have sworn against each other, to be revoked nly on the utter extermination of one or the-other of them. It is true that at one time or another an apparent reconciliation was effected between the two hostile factions by pressure being brought to bear on the chiefs by the local authorities-I am speaking of what took place in the Straits—yet the peace thus patched ip was only transient and illusory; the fire lay smouldering in the ashes only to burst seen forget probably. The Chinaman in question | things now is as far removed from that of fifty forth, at any moment, with greater intensitys Hence a Chinaman is ever on the alert and does not feel himself safe or secure unless he is covered that he had actually shipped about 41 dred and fifty years ago is infinitely greater. located among his own confraternity. We thus behold in Rangoon the Hokiens esbablishing themselves almost in a continuous line along the business part of the Strand Road and forming a. compact body, militant as it were, among their tribasmen and brethren of the secret alliance from Mesers. Piuthong and Friend's store; as far as the Commissariat Wharf, the flags and streamers of the Topehkongs wave proudly in the breeze. In like manner the Macaos group themseles together along Dalhousie-street, beginning with a colony of carpenters near the Social Pagods and ending with the shoomskers, and restaurateurs in the proximity of the Iren Bazaar, the secret symbol of the Glice Hin brotherhood, hidden under some allegorical sign-boards or emblematic paper-hangings, proclaims to the brethren of the craft that they are safe under the protecting begis of the great confederation. At present everything seems quiet enough, not a sign betokens the existence of the formidable rivairy between the two classes, nothing seems to indicate the presence of a deadly antagonism between them; but let eventualities arise

These bloody trophies are fixed on poles paraded before their opponents to taunt exasperate thom. It may be asked what essures are taken by the authorities to supass these fends. To answer this question perently the scene must be shifted to the ruits Settlement where these Secret Societies ve developed into gigantic proportions and rel in full invariance; it is there where they seen in their true colours. Compared with eir number the Police, which is mostly renited from among the Malays and Jawee pleans, pluding the Military, is a mere handful, and add to the difficulty of the situation some of e former are, not without good reason, susoted of being themselves members of those inmons associations. As a rule on the outbreak hostilities between rival Societies the Police ation invariably forms the first object of atk by the rioters. There are two-fold reasons this one is to drive out of the field all seible, witnesses and reporters of their atroies, and the other is to punish such of policemen who are suspented of belonging or having a leaning towards the adverse praction of Wind war as ty. As for the police with such fearful is to contend against, for the bolligerent ties sometimes number as many as 20,000 n on each side, they are simply powerless prowhere. On such a crisis the Military is led out and sided by a body of special conbles parade through the town to overawe the l-disposed with orders, however, not to use ir arms; but this ill-advised measure only ves to provoke the rioters to greater excesses; they are apt to coastrae the forbearance of Government into weakness. Chinamen, as a a, will only respect such authority as they e not trifle with. At the great fight in nang, referred to above, the Topehkongs ing the Sepoys, who were ordered to form demarcating line between them and the ce Hine, maintain a passive attitude, became emboldened as to turn their arms against om, killing a Jemadar and a private and anding several others. LETTELS FOR THE UNITED STATES BY SAILING When it is desired to forward letters to the United States by a sailing ship which is not notified as carrying a mail, it is only necessary to post the letters in the ordinary way, macked with the name of the ship, and prepaid 8 cents per half ounce as usual. This Office then undertakes the duty of obtaining notice of departure quested that the letters be posted if possible at least one day before the date fixed for sailing. Many boxes of letters are received at the Post Office not sealed, that is to say, the box is fastened with sealing wax, but there is no impression of a ssul. The attention of boxholders is called to the necessity of carefully sealing such boxes with some recognisable seal, and of sending a chit. book or receipt with them. The omission of the latter precaution leaves a doubt as to whe. ther the contents of the box ever reached the Post Office; the omission of the former, as to whether part of them might not have been abstracted for the sake of the Postage Stamps. Correspondence for the West Indies (except those belonging to the Postal Union, the Bahamas, and Hayti), for Monte Video and Paraguay can no longer be sent vil San Francisco.
